WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN THE FIELD, April 23.—Yesterday the French and British continued their victorious pressure against the German lines, adding hour by hour to the territory regained and to the ever-increasing toll of prisoners and guns. Since the offensive was begun by the French on Monday last, despite daily counter attacks in force by the troops of von Hindenburg, the French have not yielded an inch of their gains and in no instance have the Germans been able either to hold or press back the exhausted soldiers.

Up until yesterday morning, for the fighting of the past two weeks, the British and French have taken thirty-three thousand prisoners and have inflicted casualties upon the Germans amounting to more than one hundred and fifty thousand, according to the best estimates obtainable.

Field guns of all calibers have been captured to the number of three hundred and thirty, in addition to which machine guns and trench artillery to the number of more than thirteen hundred pieces have fallen into Allied hands.

And there is no cessation to the tremendous pressure which the Allies are continuing to exert against the slowly yielding German lines. Yesterday while the French and British each advanced in some portions of the battle line and while numerous German counter attacks were beaten back, the main fighting was with the heavy artillery.

Another Thrust Presaged
From Lens, towards the British left, to Arras, in the French positions, a steady bombardment of the German positions is being kept up, thousands upon thousands of shells being poured out in prodigious bombardment, and at one section of the line no less than at another. This tremendous expenditure of ammunition is taken to presage another big thrust at some section of the German front, but at what particular point cannot be told from the artillery firing.

Yesterday the French advanced south of Juiville and along the edges of the forest of St. Gobain, east of Comcy, while German attacks against Mont Haut were driven back.

The British advances for the day were on the tip of the salient being driven between St. Quentin and Cambrai.

TOKIO, April 21.—Japan and the United States should work together in China, according to Lindsay Russell, president of the Japan Society of America, in a talk before prominent citizens of Tokio at the Imperial Hotel last evening.

Russell said that the United States and Japan should form a financial or economic treaty in order to guarantee the peace of the Pacific. He urged that investments by Japanese and Americans be made in China jointly. Baron Shibusawa was another speaker who spoke on the friendly relations between Japan and the United States.

HIGHEST HONORS PAID TO BRITISH FOREIGN MINISTER

American War Effort Will Astonish World
Balfour Tells An Interviewer

(Associated Press By Naval Radio Service)

"We are in the United States in order that we may make cooperation easy and effective among those who are striving with all their power to bring about a lasting peace for the world in the only way that is possible, and that is through carrying on the war to a successful end."—Arthur J. Balfour, British minister for foreign affairs.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The British commission, headed by Arthur J. Balfour, minister of foreign affairs, that has come to America to participate in what is expected to be the greatest war council ever held on this continent, reached this city early this morning by special train. Upon the result of its deliberations is expected to depend to a great extent the conduct of the war on the part of the United States and the share she is to play with the Entente Allies against the common foe.

In addition to the foreign minister, the British commission includes Admiral de Chair of the British navy, General Bridges of the army, and the governor of the Bank of England, attended by a numerous staff.

The French commission, headed by former Premier and now Minister of Justice Viviani, is also expected to arrive in a day or two.

Businesses American Aid Appreciated
The British minister, in an interview, expressed the appreciation that had been entertained throughout all the Allied nations of the help afforded by the United States as a neutral in the charitable work which she had made possible in Europe and which her citizens had carried on.

As for the attitude of the United States now, as an Allied power, there is deep gratification felt throughout Great Britain, he said. Of the friendly sympathy of the United States there had never been any doubt in informed Entente circles and now that America has entered the war, to make common cause with England in a fight for the upholding of international law and the maintenance of treaties, only unbounded satisfaction is felt among the Allies.

Will Astonish World
The British statesman expressed his conviction that the United States would make efforts in the war that would astonish the world.

"The object of the British commission," he said, "is to make cooperation as easy and as effective as possible among those powers who are striving to bring about a lasting peace for the world in the only way that is possible, and that is in carrying the war through to a successful finish."

Mr. Balfour was received yesterday at an unnamed port, the highest possible honors being shown to him and his associates. Specially named delegates from the army, navy and state departments greeted him to the United States. At the port of his arrival, a special train was waiting. This train was manned by a special crew and was guarded as no train has ever been before in American history, while the track was patrolled unceasingly to prevent the carrying out of any possible plot against the lives of the British commissioners.

LONDON, April 22.—The first and most important duty of America towards her European Allies is the exercise of the strictest economy in food stuffs and supplies such as are needed by the Entente for the carrying on of the war," says Herbert C. Hoover, formerly chairman of the American commission for Belgian relief and now making an examination of the food situation in Europe for the American government, in order to determine how best American food supplies may be distributed.

"If the people of the United States do not exercise economy," he continued, speaking to the American people through the Associated Press, "they stand a grave chance of losing in the war they have just committed themselves to against Germany and Germany's Allies, for the Entente can not win this war without food."

"The total stock of foodstuffs in the Allied world is not sufficient to last through the month of September if America continues her present consumption."

Cooperative Buying
During the two weeks which Mr. Hoover has spent in London he has laid the groundwork for inter-allied cooperation in the handling and in the transportation of the vast supplies of food stuff required from the United States. This cooperation will tend to ameliorate the existing high prices, from which Americans are suffering along with the people of the Entente, he explains. The Allies, through cooperation, will buy through the one agency and in this way the competition will be eliminated and

(Associated Press By Naval Radio Service)

MINEOLA, New York, April 22.—The American people must awaken to the necessity of stern national thrift, in order that the demands upon the resources of the United States for the war may be met, declared Theodore Roosevelt in an address delivered here last night.

Immediate steps must be taken, for one thing, to put a limit upon the amount of grain used for the brewing of beer and the distilling of spirits, he stated. The nation can get along without beer and spirits, but it can neither maintain itself nor do its duty towards its Allies without grain.

Automobile joyriding must come to an end. The supply of gasoline is not inexhaustible and the demands upon the supply by the government for its gasoline driven vehicles and for the great fleet of patrol boats soon to be in operation must be met first. Automobiles must not be allowed to waste what may be in pressing demand for army and navy purposes.

The former President, referring to the threatened food shortage, due to untitled land, stated his conviction "that if there be found any lack of labor for the fields the unemployed men of all communities who are without other tasks in the national service should be conscripted into the services of the farmers as tillers of the soil and as harvest hands."

LEGISLATION TO STOP
WASTE OF GRAIN

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The use of grain for the manufacture of intoxicating liquors will be prohibited by act of congress, if that body adopts an amendment to the Espionage Bill which was proposed yesterday by Senator Cummins of Iowa.

The movement to put a stop to this waste of the grain resources of the country started in Kansas and has spread rapidly throughout the country. Warnings have been issued by the President and the secretary of agriculture that grain acreage and the condition of the grain crops throughout the country are far below normal and that it is necessary to conserve every bushel of grain.

When grain is urgently needed to feed not only this country but the nations of the Entente Allies, Senator Cummins declared, it is reckless waste to use it for the manufacture of liquor.

No Hold-Up Prices
Senator Cummins introduced another important amendment which provides that food and clothing must be sold at reasonable prices and that dealers in such commodities shall not be permitted to take advantage of the necessities of their patrons to boost prices.

Prices not only of foodstuffs, but of clothing and many other things, have increased with remarkable and alarming rapidity throughout the United States since the war with Germany was declared, and it has been frequently charged that the increases are not warranted by actual conditions but are artificial and the result, in some cases at least, of the cornering of the necessities of life.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The national council of defense yesterday issued a call to the heads of railroad and coastwise shipping firms for a conference to be held here Monday.

It is understood that it is the intention to discuss the question of transportation of supplies to the Allies from interior points and also the best means of coordinating the work of the steamship lines and the railroads so that as little as possible time shall be lost.

Allied World's Food Supply Will Last Until

(Associated Press By Naval Radio Service)

LONDON, April 22.—The first and most important duty of America towards her European Allies is the exercise of the strictest economy in food stuffs and supplies such as are needed by the Entente for the carrying on of the war," says Herbert C. the prices consequently will not be allowed to continue to rise.

British Comptroller Approves
This plan advocated by Mr. Hoover, that there be formed an inter-allied food commission, to which the United States and the European Entente allies shall be parties, is strongly supported by Baron Davenport, British food controller, in an interview given by him yesterday.

Baron Davenport says he believes the plan suggested by Mr. Hoover would reduce the cost of food commodities both to the households of America and the Entente nations, and to the governments of the several countries by eliminating competitive buying.

AMERICA MUST
SAVE WORLD

(Associated Press By Naval Radio Service)

CHICAGO, April 22.—The burden of saving the world from starvation rests upon the shoulders of America, according to a declaration made here yesterday by George E. Perrell of the United States department of agriculture, who is touring the country to study crop conditions.

And present indications, Mr. Perrell stated, are that next winter the United States will not have food enough to feed its own people, let alone supply the suffering multitudes of Europe.

The only salvation, the only thing that can prevent fearful suffering in this country and starve off starvation of millions of human beings in war-torn Europe, declared the agricultural expert, is for the people of the United States at once to plant millions of additional acres to food crops and absolutely eliminate all waste.

JOHN LYCURGUS IS

PLAINS OF THESSALY

(Associated Press By Naval Radio Service)

After thirty years of residence in these islands, twenty-four of which have been spent in Hilo, John Lycurgus, brother of George, now in Greece, has decided to return home to his native country and there remain, reports the Hawaii Herald.

"Uncle" John, as Mr. Lycurgus is known all over the group, is determined to get back to Greece and settle in "Sweet Verria," as he calls the village that he was born in.

"I came to Hawaii from Melbourne, Australia, after spending some time there, thirty years ago," said Mr. Lycurgus the other day. "and although I have been back to Greece several times during that interval, I have resided for over twenty-four years in Hilo. I have seen the town grow up from nothing but a small village, without roads and with no modern conveniences, to a city of many thousands of inhabitants and an up-to-date place. I have always liked Hilo and although I am leaving now for Greece I will not forget the place where I have spent so many happy years."

When Joshua about the difficulty in getting home to Greece nowadays Mr. Lycurgus declared that he was not afraid of submarines and that if given an opportunity he would fight to preserve his life. He said that a man can only die once and asked what difference it makes whether it is in bed in Hilo or in the waters of the Atlantic or Mediterranean.

"Uncle" John declared that what he wished for most on earth now is to set foot in his native village once more and there to greet his brother and his relatives. He will proceed to Honolulu next Monday and will there take steamer for the Coast. He hopes to catch a vessel from New York some time next month.

(Associated Press By Naval Radio Service)

Through an explosion of flymanite caps, pieces of which were blown into his legs and arms, a Hawaiian man was slightly injured at Hilo on Wednesday, reports the Hawaii Herald. The Hawaiian after arriving at his home proceeded to light a fire in a homemade stove. The fire started alright, but as the man was bending over it the explosion took place, and he was thrown backward on the floor. How the caps got in the stove cannot be explained.

First aid was rendered to the injured Hawaiian.

(Associated Press By Naval Radio Service)

BUENOS AIRES, April 22.—Dario, one of the principal newspapers of this city, declares in its edition of today that the Argentine government will probably break with Germany today.

There is a great popular demand for such action, which has found expression in rioting and the wrecking and looting of establishments owned by Germans. A break with the Kaiser's government has seemed imminent for several days.

The Argentine government yesterday sent a note to Germany demanding satisfaction for the sinking of the Argentine sailing ship Monte Protegido.

The minister to Berlin has been instructed to sever diplomatic relations immediately if Germany evades responsibility for the act.

RAN FRANCISCO, April 21.—The California State legislature has unanimously passed a resolution prohibiting the display of "Patric" in the anti-Japanese film, in the State of California. Owing to the fact that Japan and the United States are now allies, the sentiment is strongly against the exhibition of the film. The film is the property of the Hearst Syndicate or the International Film Company. Mrs. Vernon Canine owns the character of Patric in the film. The plot deals with the activity of Japanese spies in America.
